

Stig Marthinsen holds a MBA in International Marketing. He has since more than a decade worked in the field of developing and fostering Internet services across Europe, including the first web service of the European Commission - I*M Europe. Mr Marthinsen has previously worked for the European Commission's DG Information Society on internet policies and supporting the market to establish new digital content ventures, in particular those harvesting public sector information. His involvement in legal publishing started in 2003 when the need for Caselex was identified. Currently he is partner in Yellow Perfection s.a.r.l. and business developer for Retriever Norge AS, a company in the Schibsted Group.

Marc de Vries holds degrees in business economics and Dutch law. Before being detached to the European Commission in Luxemburg as an external advisor in the area of ICT and law from 1996-2000, he worked as a litigation lawyer at de Brauw Blackstone Westbroek attorneys in The Hague the Netherlands from 1992. After returning to the Netherlands in 2001 he co-established ZENC, a The Hague based and currently mid-size, consultancy company working for national and international governmental organizations. Mr de Vries is also connected to the University of Tilburg as a fellow senior researcher. In that context he has published numerous articles and books on ICT and law, in particular on access and exploitation of public sector information

G rard Sabater

Former Bar President of the Bar Association of Draguignan
Member of the Bar Council
Honorary President of the ANAAFA
Representative of the Conseil National des Barreaux
Member of the steering committee on electronic communication of the French Ministry of Justice

Paul Timmers is Head of Unit for eGovernment in the European Commission, Directorate-General Information Society & Media. Previously he was a member of the Cabinet of European Commissioner for Enterprise and Information Society Erkki Liikanen, responsible for the information society (eEurope) and telecoms policy portfolio. He has also been deputy head of unit for electronic commerce in the European Commission, involved in policy and programme development. He held management positions in product marketing and software development in a large IT company and has co-founded a software start-up.

Paul Timmers has a PhD in theoretical physics from the University of Nijmegen in the Netherlands and an MBA from Warwick Business School in the United Kingdom. He has published on a range of topics, including a book on electronic commerce strategies and business models. He has been a visiting professor and lecturer at various universities and business schools

Dr. Wolfgang Heufler operates his law firm in Vienna since 1987 and is chairman of the IT-Board of the Austrian Bar Association  RAK since 2000, he also represents the Bar in Austrias Trust Center for secure digital signatures A-Trust His main interest is to ensure Austrian lawyers to be on the highest standards in electronic communication, e-government applications and signature technologies . In 2004 the digital lawyer identity card with signature chip was introduced, in 2006 electronic document archives will be presented. Dr. Heufler also teaches law in technical high schools in Vienna.